Reaching out to the poorest among the poor...

Cradle of learning...

Brief History of PYDS

SPRY Students 2005 in front of our make shift School

The seeds of PYDS were sown fifteen years ago, when on observing the marginal level of education among the poor rural children of Purkal, G.K. Swamy decided to literally take matters in his own hands. He identified promising students and put in long hours with them after school to help them cope with their studies. With the help of the Principal of a local school, scholarships were secured for these students to attend an English medium school in the city of Dehradun; but having started at the school they were soon struggling with the language. The founding teachers worked untiringly with them to improve their language but by the time they were proficient, they were too far behind in their other subjects. In this way a small gesture of free tutoring evolved into the idea of building a school, with the active support of pioneers such as the erstwhile Chairperson Mrs. Praveen Langham, providing free quality education to create opportunities for the children coming from impoverished backgrounds and giving them a level field with respect to their privileged peers.

Baby steps towards a happy childhood...

Childhood is precious ...

The school has its humble beginnings in makeshift classes operating out of cowsheds and garages. The community children flocked to join the school but the criteria for taking on new students remained unchanged; they would have to want to work and succeed and they must be from poorest backgrounds. Purkal Youth development Society registered in 2003 – an NGO situated in the Himalayan foothills is dedicated to enhancing the lives of underprivileged young people in the community.

Unflinching in their dedication and tenacious in their goals, the Society along with its friends, raised the necessary funds to erect and establish a custom built school building which was ready to use in 2006 and in that year, the teachers became full time. The campus has steadily grown and is now a fully functional school equipped with dining hall, computers lab, science labs, libraries, sports grounds and a yoga hall.

There are many who helped this transformation and several of their names are inscribed in the campus on trees dedicated to each of them. The names of many of our bigger donors are recorded on the 'Giving Tree' painted on our Donor wall in the Schools' building. Our ethos is to nurture children from very poor backgrounds through free quality education, mentorship, daylong attention to nutritional needs, complete healthcare through long years of attention. While midday nourishment has been available almost since inception; four feeds a day – breakfast, fruit, lunch and evening snacks – is being given since July 2008.

In 2010, we took the first step by setting up a primary school, went on to a secondary school and then to a senior secondary school to help us implement our idea of holistic development of the child. From just 4 students, the society now has nearly 300 children under its wings. In a landmark achievement, the school was granted CBSE affiliation up to Class 10th effective from 1st April 2011.

“One must be what one can be and in doing so realize one’s potential and excel.”

At PYDS we believe that everyone has the potential to succeed in life, regardless of the social background. We wish to realise this for those at the bottom of the social ladder by providing mentorship, guidance, good health and good schooling. We shall identify children with academic potential from amongst the poorest to support to help the attainment of a professional specialisation. The world is ever changing and to equip students with only academic knowledge will not help prepare them for the future. Preparing for the unknown would mean the acquisition of the knowledge, skills and attitudes that would help them to evolve with the changing times. This should embrace thinking: both critical and creative, Self-understanding: self management and self development, Managing conflict, empathy: the understanding of other individuals, ethics and values: Communication, World ecology, sustainability, Global perspectives, and a host of other things. Capacitated with these forms of knowledge, learners would be able to develop the attitude and application of the knowledge in the form of skills to lead a better quality of life.

Learning is the development of the mind: sensitive, curious and inquisitive. Learning should be a process of discovery, a way of finding answers to facilitate the innate curiosity within a child.

Developing a culture of Quality Reading...

Confidence galore...

Our scheme of education is based on providing children experiences and opportunities for inference and understanding. Improving the curriculum for creating an adequate learning ethos and milieu is our principal business. The School is consciously moving towards a scheme of comprehensive and continuous evaluation so that holistic growth of the child is accomplished.

Since teachers have a critical role in enhancing the classroom environment, a training environment and continuous teacher development has been developed. At PYDS teachers offer not only education but provide the scaffold deprived youngsters a safe supported and structured school environment. They often work with the whole family, in order to overcome the frequently complicated and challenging social situations faced by underprivileged families. Often they have to go over and above the traditional 'call of duty'.

We recognize that there is a great risk in embarking upon a venture of this nature without resources of our own. While inherent strength is gradually being acquired, support for the present comes through cultivating a host of individuals, Corporates and Foundations who will support the cause as long as there is conviction that the best is being delivered with a sense of Mission and scrupulous honesty. We shall proceed without fearing the shadows and looking at the light shining somewhere nearby.

The anchorage that religion and faith provides will be cultivated, imparting at the same time deep respect for faiths of all kinds.

The wider aim of PYDS is to build a replicable model upon which other schools in rural India may be established and contribute to enhanced education of the masses in India.

Secretary's Report

It has been a historic year with several landmark developments. The physical facilities have grown. This year we have completed a well-equipped modern School building and acquired additional land to justify our affiliation to the CBSE. We also completed the construction of three new laboratories for our Sciences and a further laboratory for Mathematics, apart from an Arts Room, additional facilities have also been made available, such as a Teachers Common Room and Resource Center, a Store, a Medical Inspection Room, a bigger dining area and a more commodious Common purpose Hall.

All these additions have made possible our affiliation to the CBSE up to Class 12. The inauguration of the new School building by the Chairman CBSE and his handsome praise for the work at the School were the crowning moments of the year. There was further satisfaction when we were selected as the Regional finalists of the India NGO Awards for North India 2012.

To deliver Learning better, we strengthened our Human and Organizational Resources. We now have a new Office for the academic administration seating a Principal, a Vice-Principal and an Assessment Manager. They are assisted by an Office Administrator, a Store Keeper, an Estate and an Assets Maintenance Manager.

The competence of our Teaching staff is being addressed through a plan for their continuous Training so that the delivery of the curriculum, methods for Class room Management and the use of Teaching techniques are all constantly improved. The preparation of a carefully considered School Activity Calendar has made possible accommodating co-curricular activities, equable teacher work load distribution, implementation of policies related to leave and set up processes concerning Teacher Log books, Lesson Plans and Schedules.

Many children at PYDS can cook a whole meal

Holistic development of Learning and Teaching has come about with several innovative steps developed for implementing the Continuous and Comprehensive Evaluation Scheme as conceived by the CBSE. The School is a regular participant in the Olympiad and Talent Search competitions. All these efforts have resulted in a significant improvement in the Learning levels. The physical and emotional aspects of the Child's development are addressed through counseling sessions by qualified psychologist volunteers and through several clubs that have since been constituted to handle pottery, baking, and astronomy. There are also programmes for environmental awareness and Skype programmes for Inter School discussions.

Thanks to donor support we have been able to address comprehensively the problem of both nutrition and health care. We need to sustain and improve these initiatives. We are convinced that all this effort that we put in at School does not reach completion unless we fund the children into professional programmes into which they win admission post their 12th Class. We have therefore been strengthening these possibilities by accessing Scholarships and sponsorships.

However, the question that is uppermost in the minds of most friends is "Is this a sustainable Model?" The several committed donors of PYDS have proved that this model can, not merely help us survive but assist our growth. May the Lord help us succeed.

Timely medical care...

Balanced nutrition

CAN CHARITY SUSTAIN OUR MISSION

The emphatic answer to this question is a 'YES'. PYDS is proof that charity can help such initiatives survive; it can do more; help them to grow and prosper, but this happens only under certain conditions.

The most fundamental is that the performance of the society must be worthy of respect and admiration. This will happen only if the service delivered to its beneficiaries is extraordinary and praiseworthy. Service delivery in a school is always tested through the quality of the adulthood shaped out for the students. This is not an easy call, since excellence in outcomes depends as much on the efforts put in by the students and their parents as it does on the inputs given at school. Our children begin with a handicap of near illiteracy at home and the culture of regular study and learning does not exist in the community. A strong motivation to excel has to be created among the children and the parents have to appreciate that the children need to put in extra ordinary efforts to outperform their economically advantaged counterparts. The work of the school is therefore not merely providing good inputs for learning but also motivating students into exceptional results. Here we are not talking merely of academics.

The outcomes of our efforts can become demonstrable only when we can help our children to think, comprehend, analyse and find solutions to problems on their own. We need to help build this confidence and this is no easy task. If we can do this to a large body of our pupils we will gain admiration and approval.

The other essential is the engendering of Trust among the Community in our purpose. While the donors in the community answer a call of their conscience and take steps to alleviate a crying need, the support that we get from donors becomes stronger when they witness the fulfillment of the purpose. What is important is to keep the faith and keep doing what is necessary in an honest, accountable and transparent manner. Keeping to the straight and narrow path is thus an essential prerequisite. Purity of purpose and selflessness of spirit can transcend every limitation. The rest is in the hands of the lord. In some sense the insecurity that we suffer in the absence of a regular stream of income, is good since it will keep us both wary and vigilant. Someone said that there are no atheists in Fox holes and we need to live in Fox holes to retain the faith!

Education necessarily demands long term horizons. Poverty on the contrary compels people to remain embedded in immediate or short term concerns. This is a dilemma since we deal with extremely poor people. Children and their parents need to plan for a distant future in which they can reap the fruits of education. By assuring children from the start, continuous support into the long term and much beyond the school, the Society has helped children dream into a bright future.

Hunger, illness and insecurity interrupt lives. The families of our children live with these unpredictables with a degree of regularity. On the other hand, accomplishment at school demands freedom from these anxieties. Unpredictability, everyday emergencies, sudden losses and traumas can torment and disturb learning and aspirations. While we have been unable to address this disability in its entirety, we have insulated the children who are our wards from this trauma to a degree by assuring clothing, freedom from hunger and illness. The children in our care are not malnourished but in fact healthy. We have however been unable to help the other members of their families.

Our children do not merely come to school and learn but do so in interactive and interesting ways. Children are helped to realize their potential while building healthy relationships.

We cannot now rest on our laurels. Many more are waiting for our help. It is true that the cost of running the current programme is rising and will become more expensive in the times to come. But, this challenge can be met if there is enough passion and commitment. We at PYDS are not only aware that we need to sustain our present operations but grow and make it available to a larger number.

The answer to the problem of sustainability is not the building of a corpus that can meet the School's needs on a regular basis. Some reserves that can help us tide over a temporary cash crunch is in order.

The solution lies in finding and retaining small and large sized donors. Sustaining their confidence and their loyalty is only possible through accomplishing excellence consistently and doing so with the utmost honesty. We need to constantly share our hopes, success and aspirations with them. Our strength will be in the goodwill that we enjoy and the several friends around us who are ready and willing to help. These strengths will remain as long as we deliver quality education to the poorest in the community and continue this care right through, up to their entering a professional career.

On to life - Post 12th Support

Our Budding Mariner

Staying true to our objective of creating opportunities for a better life for our disadvantaged youth, our 'On To Life' programme assists our students who graduate from Class 12 to transition into a successful adulthood. We provide support post – schooling through counseling, scholarships, interest free loans etc to help our students pursue their university education.

Until date, 76 students have passed out of our scheme and we have been able to help 22 students pursue professional programmes. From the Batch of 12 for the current year, Abhishek Maurya has commenced his B.Tech in Electronics; Mohd. Aneesh is pursuing Bachelors degree in Architecture, Sonali Mishra secured admission into an Economics Honours course at the Delhi University, Priya Pundir took admission into a Bachelor programme in Physiotherapy. Individual donors have assisted most of these children. Three of our students Priyanka Pal, Kritika Kumari and Sakshi Sharma have won an all-expense paid scholarship of USD 12,000 per year for 4 years from the Asian University for Women, Chittagong. Four of our ex -students – Parul Pal, Swati Pundir, Sonali Pundir and Sonali Mishra are Khemka scholars pursuing professional courses with assistance from the Khemka Foundation. In years to come, we shall make increasing use of this facility to fund other bright students.

We successfully completed the third year of our Early Childhood Learning Centre. It is a 7 hour care facility for 49 children in the age group of 3–5 years whose mothers work in our sister society 'Stree Shakti'. Along with free quality kindergarten based learning, children receive comprehensive immunization, nutrition (including a glass of milk every day) and health care.

Their mothers are now able to work and train knowing their children are safe and sound. Early intervention by providing nutrition and mental stimulation is highly beneficial. Children acquire language and social skills naturally and easily, establishing a solid base for future learning.

Participation with Communities

We have a dual focus – development of individual capacity of the underserved and the consequent building of community capacity in backward rural areas - to generate social and economic opportunities leading to a better quality and equity of life. Self-reliance at the community level strengthens the society as a whole. Since its inception, the society has actively promoted important social initiatives and has campaigned for its implementation by the community. When communities work together, the result is its permanent strengthening and renewed hope for the future. Our community initiative encourages participation and aims at community empowerment through long term sustainability

- A Blood donation camp was organized at our society by The Blood Bank Dehradun in May 2012. Our students being less than 18 years old were ineligible to contribute but undertook a campaign to spread awareness- a very educative experience. As a result about 250 donors turned up for blood donation.
- Under the programme for IAYP our students took up the challenge of making the community plastic free. Every Saturday the Environment club of our school did an anti-plastic campaign around the community covering at least 10 villages around Purkal.

Infrastructure and Development

Life is for Giving

- The construction of the school building concluded with the addition of two floors.
- 1280 sq. meters of additional land was purchased to conform to the requirements of Central Board of Secondary Education.
- A new athletic field has been developed so that the children can get trained in areas of long jump, high jump, hurdle race etc.
- Spacious Biology, Chemistry and Physics laboratories constructed, equipping which is under way.
- A new multi- purpose hall was constructed by merging two classrooms. It is being extensively used for Yoga, various school events etc.
- Extension of the dining hall has been done to accommodate 65 students at a time.
- An 8" Newtonian Reflecting Telescope was procured to foster amateur astronomy among students. A dedicated Astronomy section has been constructed which houses the telescope and provides for a platform for celestial viewing.
- A new music and lighting system was procured so that in house arrangements can be made for various school events.

Challenges Faced

Mr. Vineet Joshi, Chairman C.B.S.E Visited us.

- CBSE affiliation up to Class12: The School will benefit and with it the credibility that the recognition lends.
- Completion of the school building: With the additional two floors, a well-designed and complete school building is now in place.
- Reaching out to the poorest: Detailed surveys and on the ground checks are made periodically so that the most needy can have access to quality education.
- Upgrading learning standards and training teachers: Improving and maintaining standards of excellence in education entails on-going teacher training workshops, seminars and participation at various platforms. This translates into an overall exposure and maximizing ones capabilities.

Lessons Learnt

- Provision of physical facilities is not enough. The childhood trauma that poverty brings handicaps the child in insidious ways. Nurturing with sensitivity and extended hand-holding is paramount so that they feel secure enough to focus on a good future.
- Widen the support base: As an NGO, we need to address the possibility of a regular income stream through a diversified donor base. It would make the operations viable, stable and strong. The aim is to persuade different people to contribute in various sizes by giving them options.

Future Plans

- Induct 50 additional children to optimize class strength to 25 students per class.
- Procure furniture and lighting for children who don't have these basic facilities at their homes. Students, particularly in senior classes need to put in intensive work after school hours. A dedicated study space and proper lighting would aid increased concentration.
- Attempt to set up a hostel facility for about 50 very poor children. Though substantial funds are needed to be raised, it would give a stable studying opportunity for destitute children with virtually no resources.

Sustainability

- Increase in the number of Class Sponsors in the year 2012-13: Rose from 4 to 5
- Net increase in the number of donors who supported our cause in the year 2012-13: Rose from 384 to 396.
- The new school building finished and furnished. Additional Cost Approx. Rs.30 Lacs
- CBSE affiliation to class 12: Purchase of additional land for the purpose: Rs. 35 Lacs
- Increase in the number of students: 7
- Reserve Fund in place for meeting a cash crisis if any: Rs. 15 Lacs Awards & Prizes - Keep encouraging children.

- Comprehensive progress of the child is evaluated on a quarterly basis. It includes the emotional, physical, scholastic and co-scholastic areas.
- Quarterly Budget Utilization is provided to the major donors detailing the expenses incurred on their contributions.
- Health cards are maintained for each of the students.
- Suggestion Register to monitor the quality of food being provided.
- Full time internal auditor and six monthly external audits to ensure accuracy in financials.
- Four board meetings every year to assess the progress and discuss the future road map.

Donors and Friends

Over the years, it has been the invaluable contributions of our patrons which have given wings to our mission of providing free equitable education and complete care to destitute children so that they have a level field to compete with their privileged peers and realize their dreams of a dignified and prosperous life.

We are fully dependent on the largesse of organizations and individuals who share our belief in the dignity and equity of rich and poor alike. While the names of every one of them and their addresses are available, they are not being published; respecting the desire of many to remain anonymous. However we need to mention those who sponsor a whole class and form a base for our sustainability.

In October 2012, Komal Sharma, a student of Class 4 developed an acute ear infection due to a perforated eardrum. Surgery was advised to forestall loss of hearing.

Komal comes from an extremely poor family. Her father is physically handicapped and does not earn and the family lives hand to mouth sustaining on a small piece of land.

The entire expenses of the surgery and hospitalization were borne by the society. With successful surgery there has been complete recovery for Komal.

Dev Verma, is a student of our Early Childhood Learning Centre. His mother works in Stree Shakti and his father is a Mason. In December 2012 Dev injured his eye leading to visual misalignment. Heavy medical expenses were beyond their means. PYDS took complete financial responsibility for the treatment of Dev's eye, was operated and has had complete recovery.

Akash Pal, a student of Class 5 had a white patch in his eyes since childhood. With age the patch was growing and his vision was getting adversely affected. Akash's mother works for Stree Shakti and is the primary breadwinner of her family. His father, after a minor accident, works as a daily wage labour sporadically.

A specialist at Dehradun recommended PGIMR, Chandigarh. After study there, an eminent Eye surgeon at Ambala, Punjab, performed the surgery. It entailed 1 week hospitalization and monthly reviews thereafter. The surgery went well and further degeneration of the eye has been prevented.

The Society paid the entire expense of the surgery and post operation check-ups. Akash can now aspire to fulfill his dreams without being stymied by any potential visual limitations.

Success Stories

The mission has been to give these children means to work towards a productive and progressive life. Our alumni have made good of our vision of transformation. From humble beginnings of a poor rural backdrop, our young adults are now professionally qualified and doing well in their lives.

Sonali Pundir: Sonali hails from the nearby rural community. The family is dependent on the frugal income of her father who is a driver by trade. She has broken the shackles of her financial limitations – with the support and guidance of PYDS Sonali is pursuing her Bachelors in Mass communication from IMS, Dehradun. She has been awarded the Khemka Scholarship to help pursue her university education. She plans to be a program editor with a reputed media house. The achievements of our young girls are an inspiration to our poor rural community – they now know by example that through perseverance and hard work life can transform for the better.

Parul Pal: Parul's father is a plumber and mother is an uneducated rural housewife. At PYDS, Parul showed the initiative and drive to learn, compete and shine. Her hard work and dedication have held her in good stead. She is a proud Khemka Scholar and is currently pursuing her Bachelors in Management. She is on the path of charting a good life for herself and making her dreams come true.

Priyanka Pal: Priyanka's father is a vehicle mechanic and the family stays in a nearby village called Jodigaon. She has been a keen and a promising student all through. Equipped with an annual scholarship of USD 12,000 she is pursuing her graduation from the Asian University for Women, Chittagong, Bangladesh. The transformation isn't just for her own self but would have ripples in her family as well as the community. Her success story underscores the significance of empowerment of the underprivileged through education.

Ranjan Kumar: Ranjan is an extremely vivacious and intelligent boy with a keen interest in sports. His father is a caretaker of a house with no financial means to steer his son's potential to achieve true success. At PYDS, Ranjan developed into a bright boy with a go-getter attitude. Currently, he is pursuing a degree in Hotel Management from Bangalore and has been awarded a scholarship by the prestigious Hans Foundation.

Vaishali Thakur: Vaishali's father is a daily wage laborer with intermittent income. Her mother supplements the income of the family by selling milk. The trials of meeting the basic needs of survival left little hope for a good education for children. But after being inducted in PYDS, there has been no looking back for Vaishali. Moulding and shaping of her dormant caliber by the teachers here has proved to be life changing. With good grades in Class 12, she has cleared B. Pharmacy entrance test and is currently in her 2nd year. With a sought after degree in Pharmacy, she would surely springboard successfully into the future.
